

M.C. MoHagani Magnetek Bio

M.C. MoHagani Magnetek (pronounced: emcee mahogany magnetic) resides in Anchorage, AK at her Wonder Woman Wonderdome.

She's is a prolific writer who is cooler than ice water, has earned degrees in Anthropology (B.A.) English (B.A.) Forensic Death Investigation (graduate certificate) and a Masters of Fine Arts in Creative Writing & Literary Arts. She is currently working on getting her life together. A Coast Guard veteran, Community Organizer and a Human Rights Advocate who is world renown, nationally recognized and locally accepted as the undisputed people's champ because she believes poetry is therapeutic.

Some of her published works include "Shhh Be Quiet" Building Fires in the Snow (2016). "Acrimonious Black Woman Sparks Climate Change Debate with the President" Alaska Women Speak (Spring, 2019). "Girlfriend, What's Your Recipe for Lemonade" Woman Scream: The International Poetry Anthology of Female Voices (2020). Her first novel: "The Mad Fantastic, 2098" (2020). "Death by a Thousand Kisses: A Ms. Mahogany Bones Murder Mystery" (2021).

Her list of accolades also include jumping over five cars on her bike and chaining herself to a tree for justice, equality and respect for all people. Selling laundry detergent pods to crusty children and dusty adults who all just want to be fresh and clean as well as frying fish are her favorite pastimes.