

Nanette Stevenson bio

Nanette Stevenson is a freelance book and graphic designer living in Anchorage, Alaska, and former Art Director of children's books at G. P. Putnam's Sons and Philomel Books in New York City. Stevenson has worked with notable author/illustrators, such as Eric Carle, Tomie dePaola, Jan Brett, John Schoenherr, and Peggy Rathmann among many others. She currently specializes on Alaskan books published by Ember Press and other Alaskan design projects. She takes a holistic approach to creating a book: aiming to seamlessly integrate story, illustrations, photos, text layout and manufacturing while working closely with the authors, illustrators, and publisher to support their vision. Her favorite phrase is, "Honor the process."
