

Marcia Wakeland bio

Marcia Wakeland is an essayist, journal writer, former writing consultant for the Anchorage School District, and author of two children's books. She recently published a spiritual memoir on walking a 500-mile pilgrimage entitled The Long Walk Home: Confessions on the Camino. She currently blogs weekly on how the Camino transformed her soul and continues to inform her life. She also continues to walk whenever and wherever she can, but with a preference for the wild places of Alaska. She has lived for 43 years in the beauty of Eagle River Valley with her husband and family.