

Neva Post bio:

Neva Post grew up in a log house in Interior Alaska where she walked uphill both ways to school at temperatures of negative forty with only the aurora borealis to light her way. At least, that's how she remembers it. She's equally happy on a snowy trail or coaxing vegetables to grow in her garden during the long Alaskan summer days. When she's not waxing skis or chasing voles out of her cabbage, she's at her computer. Neva's novels include paranormal elements—she can't help it—with smart and dependable characters who always get their HEA.